

"WE" REUNITED IN WEE SMALL HOURS OF MORNING TODAY

Lindbergh Flew to Capital and Returned With His Plane

Mitchel Field, N. Y., June 16—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who flew to Washington for his "Spirit of St. Louis" in the wee small hours of the morning returned with the other half of his famous crew at 7:57 this morning (daylight time).

The round trip was made in less than five hours. He hopped off from here in a borrowed army pursuit plane at 3:03 o'clock and arriving at Bolling Field Washington at 4:44 a. m. (daylight time), leaped from the plane to his beloved "Spirit of St. Louis" and took off again for New York at 5:09.

The flight again demonstrated the amazing ability of the youthful flyer to do without sleep. Today he planned to take a short nap before beginning another crowded program of activities that was to start at 10:30 a. m.

Rigorous Program

After a hasty breakfast at Mitchel Field, Lindbergh returned to Manhattan for a rest before continuing the rigorous program laid out for him.

The Park Avenue district where the flyer is staying was astir with excitement as the time approached for Lindbergh to leave for Brooklyn.

When he appeared on the street a snowstorm of torn paper descended upon him from windows and his car rolled away between sidewalks crowded with cheering men and women.

With a motorcycle escort Lindbergh's car swept across the Manhattan bridge. It was greeted at the Brooklyn end by the shrill cheer of the nearest of the 150,000 school children who were spread along the line of march.

Pleased With Plane.

Thirty two hundred police had been assigned to handle the crowds in Brooklyn and they had their hands full.

Before leaving his apartment for Brooklyn, Lindbergh had accorded reporters a brief interview concerning his flight to Washington. "I'm well pleased the way my ship behaved," he said, and made no attempt to hide the joy he felt at being once more reunited with his partner in the famous "wee."

"I'm not very tired. I hope to get a good night's sleep tonight but even if I don't, I can fly to St. Louis tomorrow just the same."

The exact time of his hop-off for St. Louis, he said, would not be settled until he had received a wire from there. He had planned tentatively to be there at 6 o'clock tomorrow or earlier.

Pending good conditions, he said he could make the trip in nine hours but another hour would have to be allowed if there were winds.

A mighty roar went up as Lindbergh appeared and a storm of paper and ticker tape fell from windows. Lindbergh smiled at the crowd with no trace of fatigue.

There were ten automobiles in the parade. Col. Lindbergh's car being at the head of the line. The parade was preceded by 100 motorcycle policemen.

Praised By Preacher.

Colonel Lindbergh was hailed as a messenger of international good will by Rev. S. B. Cadman, president of the Churches of Christ in America, who was delegated to make the address of welcome.

After praising the trans-Atlantic feat and the character of Colonel Lindbergh, Dr. Cadman said:

"We value you most of all for your matured wisdom, gracious deference, inborn tact, delicacy of nature and inflexibility of purpose."

"Your brief but all sufficient messages of good will have soothed the ruffled relations of internationalism and may yet function for their redemptive."

Col. Lindbergh spoke briefly, stressing a he has done in all his talks what he believes is the pressing need for air ports in this country.

The young colonel then received the 17th medal presented since his trans-Atlantic flight. This was a gift of the school children of Brooklyn.

Unfavorable Weather to Hold Up "America"

New York, June 16—(AP)—With his tri-motored Fokker monoplane "America" fueled and provisioned for its projected flight to Paris, Commander Richard T. Byrd today faced a probable delay of several days in his take off due to unfavorable weather conditions. Atmospheric conditions over the Atlantic could hardly be worse than at present, the weather bureau announced.

Commander Byrd had previously announced he would not attempt the flight until the weather bureau had given its approval.

Questioned as to reports that he planned a flight around the world upon arriving in Paris, Commander Byrd said while he has considered the possibility of such a flight he has made no plans for one and that it is "more of a possibility than a probability."

PRESIDENT GOES FISHING TODAY; READY FOR REST

Now is Almost Shut Off from Outer World: Sanders Busy

BULLETIN

Rapid City, June 16—(AP)—A racing mountain trout stream called to President Coolidge today and after several hours angling, he returned to the summer White House proudly showing a fine catch.

Rapid City, S. D., June 16—(AP)—Far from the centers of population, President Coolidge turned to a new life today in the Black Hills of South Dakota where pine-covered mountains and wild game almost hedged him from the outside world.

In the center of 35 square miles of forests he has set up the summer White House in the state game lodge where for the next two months he will live in a region skirting the great farming regions of the northwest.

It was the farthest west Mr. Coolidge has come since he became president and no chief executive before him had traveled this far from Washington to live for such an extended period. In the quiet retreat which will be his home, he had an ideal setting for rest and relaxation. Within a stone's throw of the game lodge are mountain streams abounding in spirited trout.

Ready For Business

While Mr. Coolidge acclimated himself to his new surroundings, his secretary, Everett Sanders, and the White House staff moved rapidly to perfect arrangements for carrying on the executive end of the nation's business. Instant communication has been provided between the lodge and offices in Rapid City over private wires and another wire connects the office with Washington.

The lure of a mountain stream filled with sporty trout drew the President at an early hour today equipped with hip boots and rod and reel.

"Check Your Boots" is Heard at Quereest Ball

Beardstown, Ill., June 16—(AP)—"Here ya are. Check your boots!" Quereest of all dance hall chuckle rooms, where boots were the principal things checked, had its initiation in the flooded city of Beardstown last night. "Check your boots" was the cry addressed to both men and women dancers. They came carrying their dancing shoes under their arms.

This dance reopened Beardstown's social life, which for more than two months had been non-existent.

Everywhere today the city assumed a spring cleaning attitude, hopeful of the future. The river had dropped to 23.3 feet, a decrease of one fifth foot in 24 hours. There are still 200 houses entirely surrounded by water.

PINED ENDS HIS LONG FLIGHT AT ROME LATE TODAY

Greeted by Mussolini and Dignitaries on Alighting There

Rome, Italy, June 16—(AP)—Commander de Pinedo, Italian aviator, arrived at Ostia, near Rome, at 5 o'clock this afternoon, concluding his four-continent flight. He was greeted by immense cheering crowds and officially welcomed by Premier Mussolini and other dignitaries.

Naples, Italy, June 16—(AP)—Three centuries of fighting ancestors lie behind the daring spirit of Marquis de Pinedo, the intrepid Italian aviator who is known as "Frank" to his intimate friends.

Since the family was founded in Spain during the reign of Charles III by Giovanni Antonio de Pinedo, a captain of dragoons in the Bourbon army, every generation has had its warrior.

Giovanni's son, Antonio, was a lieutenant general in the same force, his son, Giovanni, in turn being major of cavalry in the Spanish army which resisted Napoleon. Giovanni was condemned to death by Ferdinand of Bourbon for participating in the Neapolitan insurrections of 1820 and 1821, but afterwards pardoned.

Gabriel, his son, also accepted the rank of a major of cavalry under the Bourbons, entering the Italian army after the Neapolitan kingdom became part of Victor Emmanuel's united Italian nation.

Ignored Tradition

While breaking with family tradition by announcing at an early age a distinct preference for a naval career, Francesco showed his heritage by staying up nights and reading all adventure stories he could obtain, such as Salazar's tales; accounts of the explorations of Frithjof Nansen, the Duke of the Abruzzi, Robinson Crusoe and others.

At the same time he was fond of all nautical sports, and excelled his playmates at rowing and swimming. These activities did not prevent Franz from being graduated with high honors in classical studies from his secondary school, and from becoming accomplished as an amateur painter, particularly at portraits.

This talent, it is said, remained unknown to his family until Franz completed with skill a picture of his grandfather Gabriel, which his father was forced reluctantly for personal reasons to turn over to another member of his family.

Young de Pinedo also distinguished himself at wood carving. One day at school he carved on his desk so good a likeness of Signor Anturi, his teacher of philosophy, that the latter, instead of reprimanding him, called his fellow professors to admire his pupil's work.

De Pinedo's mother, Signora Livia de Rado de Pinedo, who also is of Spanish origin, was born in Sicily but has lived most of her life in Tuscany and Naples. Franz is very devoted to her; he frequently writes to her and never forgets her birthday.

Kept Decision Secret

So great is the respect for military traditions in the Pinedo family that Franz kept secret his decision to transfer from the navy to aeronautics, only making his announcement to that effect after he had obtained his commission as a pilot, which he did after 45 days work in a special course of instruction at Taranto.

Francesco de Pinedo was born in Naples on February 16, 1890, and entered the naval academy when he was 18. He was a cadet for three years and then for six years had a distinguished record as a naval officer in the war against Turkey for the conquest of Tripoli and in the World War, when he took a prominent part in the rescue of the Serbian army and its transport from the Austrians.

Entering the royal military aviation corps in July, 1917, he became a pilot within two months. His first important exploits were the flights from Sesto Calende, near Milan, to Rotterdam, and the return to Rome, and from Brindisi to Constantinople. These took minor rank, however, when in 1925 he flew from Sesto Calende to Melbourne, Tokyo, and Rome, covering 34,375 miles in 37 hours of actual flying time.

King Victor rewarded him after the last flight with the Knighthood of Savoy, the highest peace time military decoration. De Pinedo also has numerous other decorations, among which he prizes most highly five medals "for valor" conferred upon him in the wars against Turkey and Austria and three Croix de Guerre (military crosses) the Italian, French and English.

His Official Career

The official biography of Francesco de Pinedo, as given out by the Italian Ministry of Aeronautics, follows: Born in Naples, February 16, 1890. Entered Naval Academy, 1908.

Became cadet, 1911, embarking on Flagship Vittorio Emanuele.

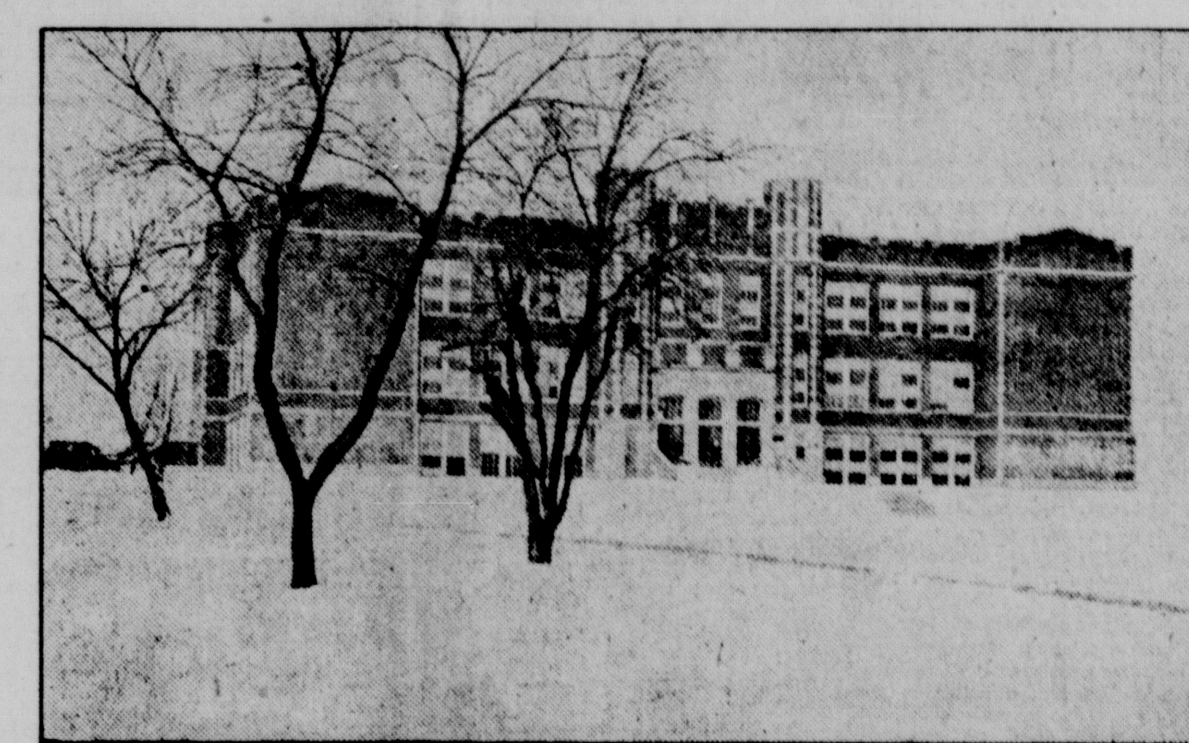

On the outbreak of the war with Turkey distinguished himself at the capture of the Gallipoli.

At outbreak of the Great War he was lieutenant, and later was given command of a vessel used in the transportation of the Serbian Army.

In July, 1917, he entered an aviation corps obtaining his certificate as military pilot in less than two months.

He distinguished himself at Brindisi (Continued on page two)

HOW ROCHELLE SOLVED SCHOOL PROBLEM

Rochelle has within the last few years taken care of its increased high school enrollment by building the fine new high school building shown above. Dixon has been confronted with the same increase in high school population. The south side high school was originally planned for 210 students and the enrollment the past year was more than 400.

Saturday from 12 o'clock noon until 5 p. m. the voters of school district No. 170, which includes the city of Dixon, will have the privilege of helping determine whether or not Dixon's school shall be made adequate.

LOWDEN BOOM IS STARTED IN IOWA IN EARNEST TODAY

"Preliminary" to Main "Bout" Staged in Hawkeye State

Advance, Emmetsburg, Iowa, June 16—(AP)—The campaign to name former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois the standard bearer of the republican party in the race for the presidency of the United States in 1928 got under way here this afternoon when Frank J. Lund, Iowa "Lowden For President" chairman, launched what he termed as the "preliminary" to a larger "bout" to follow.

"The agricultural west has just begun to fight for agricultural relief," Lund declared, asserting that he was embarrassed in his effort to launch the Lowden campaign because "Cal has not told me whether or not he is a candidate."

"He keeps silent," Mr. Lund said, "but since his migration to the Black Hills I assume that he will be a candidate."

Lowden is the outstanding character in the fight for farm relief, Lund said, and western agriculturalists want and need him in the present stress.

Mr. Lund called attention to a republican platform pledge made in the national convention of 1924 with reference to agriculture and asserted it had not been kept. This plank, he said, was in force as follows: "The republican party pledges itself to the development and enactment of a measure which will place agriculture in equality with other industries to assure its prosperity and success."

OREGON FARMER GORED BY BULL: IS BADLY HURT

William Pierce, Aged 60, in Hospital as Result Attack

Oregon—William Pierce, 60-year-old Oregon farmer, is in a serious condition in the Oregon hospital as the result of injuries sustained Sunday when gored by a bull on the Elmer Davis farm.

Dr. L. Warmoth, who was summoned to attend him, found that three of his ribs had been broken and his right arm fractured in two places. It is feared that he may have suffered internal injuries.

Pierce failed to see the bull until it charged him and was unable to dodge the enraged animal in time to avoid being knocked to the ground.

Mrs. Mae Himes, housekeeper, came to his assistance but was unable to drive off the bull. A small terrier belonging to Davis rushed at the animal and bit it as it was about to renew the attack. The bull turned from Pierce and charged the terrier.

Davis who had just entered the barnyard, and Mrs. Himes carried Pierce to the house and from there he was taken to the hospital.

Needy Flood Victims Given Assistance Here

Henry Calvin, wife and four small children travelling in a small coupe, and on their way from the flooded area in the southwestern part of the state, arrived in Dixon last night and were cared for here. The family was practically penniless and the car which they were driving was broken down. The car was towed to Dixon where necessary repairs were made, the family being fed and lodged for the night and this morning proceeded to Nennah, Wis., where Calvin stated he had employment.

ENGINEER, WELL KNOWN HERE, IS KILLED THIS A. M.

Frank Dysart, Formerly of Franklin Grove, in Accident

Relatives here and in Franklin Grove received word this afternoon of the accidental death of Frank Dysart, veteran Chicago & North-Western locomotive engineer, in the Chicago yards of that railroad at 10 o'clock this morning. Particulars of the death of Mr. Dysart, formerly of Franklin Grove, were not contained in any of the messages received here.

Probably no engineer on the North-Western was better known or had more friends than Mr. Dysart, who was "pulled" some of the finest and fastest runs on the division, and who was at the throttle of the late President Harding's funeral train from Clinton to Chicago.

It is believed funeral services will be held at Franklin Grove, but definite word concerning the rites cannot be announced until tomorrow. Mr. Dysart is survived by two brothers, James of Chicago and A. W. of Sycamore and two sisters, Mrs. Ella Shaw of Inglewood, Calif., and Mrs. Frank Miller of Chicago.

A Ford motor sedan belonging to Donald Byrd of this city was reported to have been stolen about 10 o'clock Tuesday night. The same car was stolen May 8 of last year and recovered at Geneva.

State Hospital's Siren Heard Wednesday Night

The fire signal siren whistle at the Dixon state hospital sounded last evening about 8 o'clock and attracted a great deal of attention. A barrel of bugs in the new fire proof garage building was discovered burning, the blaze being extinguished without damage to the property.

SCHOOL ELECTION NOT AN ISSUE OF INCREASING TAXES

Is Question of Spending Money Board Can Now Legally Levy

The High School election to be held on Saturday afternoon is not for the purpose of authorizing the Board of Education to raise taxes. The Board does not ask or require any tax increase above that which it is already empowered to levy.

The proposition now before the public, is, in its final analysis, just this: shall the Board of Education spend a small part of the tax money which it now has a right to collect, for the purpose of erecting a suitable high school?

The school law of the State of Illinois authorizes the Board to levy a tax of as much as $2.75 for each one hundred dollars assessed valuation, but the law does not permit the Board to purchase land for other than playground purposes, nor erect a new school building, nor issue bonds, without first submitting the question to a vote of the people.

Therefore it will be seen that the election on Saturday is for the purpose of directing the Board to expend money that is always available upon a definite, tangible object—a new and adequate high school.

The proposal is to issue bonds in the amount of $273,000 which, when paid, will enable the District to build. This debt will then be paid off by retiring the bonds in lots of $13,600.00 each year, beginning July 1, 1928. The school Board has determined, after thorough investigation, that our present school system can be maintained and this bond issue paid off without any additional tax above the $2.75 rate. Through careful, economical and efficient management, the schools of District 170 are now maintained at a cost of about $151,000.00, approximately four-fifths of which goes to pay salaries of teachers and janitors. It is well to note that the operation of one high school would effect a considerable saving in teachers' salaries.

The additional amount necessary to meet the annual payment on bonds and interest can and will be paid without exceeding the $2.75 rate.

Asks Governor's Aid in Maintaining Order

Columbus, O., June 16—(AP)—Gov. Donahay today authorized Sheriff Allison of Jefferson county, to deputize as many persons as he deems necessary to maintain order at Adena, Ohio, and other points where there have been mine disorders.

The governor's action followed receipt early today of a telegram from F. A. Gibson, Adena mayor, declaring maintenance "of order in Adena has now become impossible," and asking that state troops be sent.

Sheriff Allison replied to the governor that he "will deputize a sufficient number of men to take care of the situation," but declared the disturbances have not been serious.

DISCREDIT RUMOR OF RESCUE MISSING FRENCH ACES

Canadian Government to Send Plane to Clear Up Late Reports

Quebec, June 16—(AP)—Definite steps to clear up rumors, which thus far have proved groundless, that the missing French aviators Nungesser and Coli had been found alive and to determine definitely the source of various flares and distress signals reported north of the Saguenay river, were being taken today by the authorities here.

Searching parties are now reconnoitering the entire district in which the flares were reported to have been seen Sunday night and other sections nearby where other signals also have been observed.

It is believed that airplanes will have to be called into service to help straighten out the situation and it is thought likely that a government plane will leave for the St. Germain and nearby townships sometime today.

Discredit Rumors

The rumor that Nungesser and Coli, missing French aviators had been found on the Shipshaw river, was generally discredited today.

The rumor originated in a telephone conversation a man in the district north of the Saguenay river had with his mother in Quebec City. He is said to have told her the missing fliers were there alive and safe. Government officials and lumber companies, however, declared they could find no confirmation of the report.

SAW FLARES AGAIN?

Chicoutimi, Quebec, June 16—(AP)—Reports received here today from government employed in the Lake St. John district stated that they again have sighted last night what they believed were distress signals coming from the direction of St. Germain township.

It is in this district that flares previously have been reported leading to the hope that the signals might come from the missing French aviators Nungesser and Coli.

INFIRMARY AND FARM FOUND IN GOOD CONDITION

Supervisors Made Annual Inspection on Wednesday

The members of the county board of supervisors enjoyed their annual visit to the Lee county home near Eldena yesterday and made a thorough inspection of all of the properties, which was found to be in excellent condition. The institution home has undergone a thorough renovation and much redecoration has been done, making a most commodious place for the housing and care of the county's unfortunate. The beautiful flower gardens were the center of attraction and at this time of the year were a levy of bloom.

The planting of the crops is backward this spring owing to the long wet spell, but otherwise the supervisors found the institution to be in excellent condition.

At the noon hour, Mr. and Mrs. Willis M. Frye, superintendent and matron, entertained the board members at a bountiful dinner. Chairman Frank C. Sprout, at the conclusion of the report called upon the members to tender a rising vote of thanks to the host and hostess. The inspection of the live stock terminated the most delightful tour and the supervisors returned to Dixon to resume their activities.

Two Minor Robberies in Dixon in Night Reported

Two robberies during the night were reported to Chief J. D. Van Buren this morning, and in both instances nothing of any great value was taken. The Sinclair Oil company's offices near Fifth street and Central Place were entered during the night and ransacked, but an investigation early today revealed nothing missing. Locks on the doors had been forced with a railroad spike.

The Hey brothers ice cream plant on West First street was also entered, and a flash light, two leather vests belonging to employees and possibly a brick of ice cream was taken. The railroad spike which was used in both instances was found this morning at the Hey plant.

Los Angeles—The Examiner today reported the engagement of Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., to Helene Costello, sister of Dolores Costello, movie actress.

ASSEMBLY GIVES ITSELF TIME TO FINISH BUSINESS

Decides to Meet Again Next Week to Complete Session

Springfield, Ill., June 16—(AP)—Another week for legislation was definitely voted by the general assembly this morning when it gave formal approval to a program providing for a recess on Friday until next Monday afternoon. A minority group had urged continuance straight through this week end.

Returning here next week, the legislature will remain in session until all work is cleared.

This course was counseled by Representative Alton S. Cutler, republican floor leader, and David E. Shanahan, former speaker and oldest member of the House in point of service. Speaking against a hurried adjournment, Mr. Shanahan said as follows:

"I understand that the omnibus bill will not be taken up by the Senate until Tuesday. Consideration of the primary bill will consume one full day. There are important changes in the parole system to consider. The eighty-four Chicago bonding bills will require two full days for a roll call. The Chicago traction bills are still in committee."

Calls Hasty a Disgrace.

"With all this in view, it seems to me only logical to take our time about adjournment. I have sat in this House when the final Saturday's work lasted all night and until Sunday afternoon. It is a disgrace to the legislature and an injustice to the speaker, members and the people of the state to close this session in other than a decent, orderly manner."

This afternoon the Kessinger grain exchange bill to regulate exchanges by bringing them under control of a state commission may be called up. Amendments agreed upon by representatives of Chicago board of trade and the Illinois Agricultural Association will be proposed by Representative Gus J. Johnson, Paxton, sponsor of the measure in the House. The bill has already passed the Senate and is on order of second reading on the house calendar. Possibility of its passage has brought the threat of removal of the board of trade from Chicago.

Wet Hope Dashed.

Hope of wet to modify prohibition laws in this session was definitely crushed today when by a vote of 32 to 15 the Senate rejected the resolution memorializing congress to call a constitutional convention for the purpose of repealing the 18th amendment.

Two wet bills sponsored by Representative McDermott, Chicago, remain on the Senate calendar, but they probably will be killed without effort to save them. These bills contained virtually the same provisions as the Weber-O'Grady bill which the Senate defeated yesterday.

In turning back the Weber-O'Grady bill would have repealed state prohibition enforcement laws and the resolution of Representative Green of Rockford today, the Senate rescinded action of the lower house which approved both measures.

Withdraws Police Bill.

Charging that Governor Small had withdrawn his favor, "not because of a desire for economy but because his enemies had used their influence," Senator Henry M. Dunlap, Saxey, today asked that his state police bill be stricken from the calendar.

"Prior to his election," Dunlap told the Senate, "Mr. Small favored a system of state police. This session he told friends of the bill he would veto it, should it be passed by both houses."

"That this attitude cannot be due to a desire to economize for administration bills have been passed making increases in appropriations." He cites the parole board bills which increased the appropriations for that department about 500 percent.

Heavily Laden Truck Turned Over on Street

One of the big Interstate Trucking company's trucks, loaded with cucumbers and tomatoes, tumbled to Chicago, was considerably damaged last evening about 7 o'clock on Galena avenue just north of First street and James Lambrecht of Chicago, driver, sustained minor bruises when the truck backed into the curb and turned over on its side.

The truck had stopped for the traffic lights and the brakes failed to hold, the heavily laden truck backing down the hill, crashing into the curb and turned over on its side. Boxes of tomatoes and cucumbers were strewn about and it was necessary to remove the entire load before the truck could be righted. It was then reloaded and preceded eastward.

FEW MINES WORKING

Springfield, Ill., June 16—(AP)—Less than 2,500 of the 90,000 members of the Illinois Mine Workers had employment digging coal last month, the official report of the state department of mines and minerals said today. In that month 215,089 tons of Illinois coal were produced as compared with 2,543,209 tons in March.

GASOLINE NOW 11c

A welcome announcement is the fact that gasoline may now cost only 11c. It is estimated that this reduction would effect a saving of millions of dollars for the American motorists.

This amazing reduction is brought about by a mysterious little device that is easily installed on any car in a few minutes time. E. Oliver, 1041-1702 W. Winnebago St., Milwaukee, Wis., is so proud of this invention that for a limited time he is offering the device free to auto owners who will help introduce it. He also needs men everywhere and offers profits of $75 to $150 a week to men who will handle local business. Write him at once for his free sample offer and money making proposition.—Adv.

ST. LOUIS READY TO WELCOME COL. LINDBERGH HOME

Three Day Celebration Arranged for Hero of Missouri City

St. Louis, Mo., June 16—(AP)—St. Louis today was ready to bellow forth a tumultuous welcome to its celebrated flyer, Col. Charles Lindbergh.

Details necessary to make the home coming celebration the most elaborate ever accorded a St. Louisian have been completed and the city now awaits the arrival of the noted Trans-Atlantic birdman in the "Spirit of St. Louis," scheduled for 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The homecoming celebration will start about 3:40 o'clock tomorrow. Naval reserves stationed in the river between Eads and Municipal bridges, will signal his approach. The signal will set of a din of whistles, sirens and bells, designed to convey to all 4th city that its hero-of-the-day has returned.

Col. Lindbergh will bring the "Spirit of St. Louis" down to earth on the Lambert-St. Louis Flying Field.

Officials to Meet Him.

At the flying field Governor Sam A. Baker and Mayor Miller will extend a hearty official greeting after which Col. Lindbergh will be taken to the home of Harry F. Knight, one of the backers of the flyer's New York to Paris flight. No reception has been arranged for him that night.

Saturday morning the aviator will head a parade through the city and in the afternoon he will participate in the championship flag-raising ceremony by the St. Louis Cardinals at Sportsman Park. That night he will be a guest of honor at a dinner, preceding which addresses will be made by Secretary of War Davis

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

They tell me that short-sleeved and sleeveless dresses aren't going to be sold this summer. The reason seems to be that if they're on the market, "working girls" will wear them, and if they haven't better sense, the manufacturers will keep them from such folly and, incidentally, sell more cloth, which makes me fume and bubble like a Vesuvius. Fortunately, another lady boiled and stewed just as hotly, so I can make her do the work by quoting her. This from "Through many Windows" by Helen Woodward:

FOR WOMEN ONLY!

"I suppose it is because so many people think offices inhuman efficiency incubators that they are always laying down rules about how women in them should act and what they should wear and how they should have long sleeves and not bob their hair and do without rouge. I cannot in any other way explain to myself this impertinent interference with the lives of office women. Why should anyone take it upon himself to give advice about such a matter?"

"A girl who is able to earn her own living can be trusted to have enough sense to know what she ought to wear. And if she hasn't it's her own affair—nobody else's."

A HOT DIALOGUE

"It isn't dignified or in good taste," one of the editors said to me. "I don't like the idea of little thin, light dresses in an office."

"You think I oughtn't to wear that white dotted Swiss dress to the office, don't you?" I knew that she was trying to advise me.

"Yes, that's what I mean, Helen. That dress has sleeves and all that—but the material isn't suitable."

"Why not?" I remarked.

"It's not correct. An office is an office," was her rather unsatisfactory reply.

"You think it's all right for a girl at Southampton or Newport to wear a thin dress with or without sleeves, don't you?"

"Oh, yes," she admitted.

"Well," I said, a little excitedly, "that girl has nothing in the world to do except to keep cool. Now these girls in my office have a lot to do besides keeping cool. They have every reason for keeping fresh and rested all day long if they can. They're the ones who ought to wear the cool dresses in the summer, more than the girl in Southampton."

"I had a stenographer whose dresses were a little too low cut in the neck and whose sleeves were entirely absent. A man said to me one day, 'Don't you think you ought to tell her not to wear that kind of a dress here?'"

"Why?" I replied. "She looks pretty in that dress and she's happy in it. You think I ought to tell her to put on something she likes less?"

"I don't think it's good taste for the office."

"What do you mean by good taste?"

"Well, it doesn't seem to fit in. And you know a lot of men get kind of upset by it."

"That's the men's business; not here or mine."

"Which, think I, is the best line of all the conversation. Nothing so riles me as the casual assumption that a woman must be made uncomfortable and hard to look at in order to make virtue easy for a man. Of all the poppycock!

JUST ONE MORE

Now one more quoted paragraph from Helen:

"These people seem to expect women who work to become suddenly inhuman. The long day is the best time most girls have to look pretty. Then why shouldn't they look just as they know how, during these important hours. If they should not do it at their work, then no woman should do it at any time. I don't see why it's more immoral for a girl to wear a sleeveless dress and a well made up face at a typewriter than for other women to wear them at an evening dinner."

"By dressing up either in clothes or in cosmetics we women build a guard about ourselves. 'Se parer' meant originally to guard, to defend one's self. We are armed for a fight, which still remains harder for working women than for women of leisure."

Thanks for the donation, Helen.

Bluebird Sewing Club Organized

A few children in the St. James district have organized a little sewing club, the Bluebird Sewing club, or bee. Young folks under fourteen may join. There are now nine members. There have been three meetings, the last one being held at the home of Miss Helen Patterson with a good attendance. The officers were elected as follows:

President—Fertile Reed.
Vice President—Frances Miller.
Secretary—Ethel Topper.
Vice Secretary and Treasurer—Helen Patterson.

It costs a dime to join the club and the fees are a nickel a meeting. For a while the club will meet every week. Lucille and Marie Rhodes who reside near St. James church will entertain the club next Tuesday afternoon. There is much interest in the little club and all hope it may prosper.

Members Y. P. M. C. In Happy Meeting

The Young Peoples Missionary Circle met on Monday evening at the Grace Evangelical church. The regular meeting under the leadership of Clifford Missman was held after the supper. After the singing of a song by all, Clifford Missman read the Scripture lesson and Mrs. Brandteller offered prayer. A vocal solo was rendered by Helen Brandteller. Miss Mary Hughes read the missionary leaflet, following the study of the lesson which was given in a very interesting way by Hattie Missman. The business session was presided over by the president, Mildred Schrock. Two new members were received. Over thirty young people attended the meeting.

HAVE BEEN GUESTS AT T. C. BOWERS' HOME—
Mr. and Mrs. Peter Meyer of Willow Lake, South Dakota, have been visiting at the home of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Bowers of the Rock Island Road.

THE FUTURE OF FLYING.

The public's grasp of flying has gone forward in a big leap in the last few weeks, and just such a public appreciation was needed to assure the future of aviation in this country.

Since the war a number of far-sighted experimenters have been making their predictions and spending we know not what sums in exploring the way for the inevitable future of the air, but the lethargic public, slow to catch on, has not become air minded. Now is the chance.

Detroit, already in possession of the world's motor production capital, would like the air capital as well, and the Detroit movement to raise a fund of $50,000 which would go to the first plane to fly from Detroit to London with a load equivalent to five passengers, is a sound business offer to develop aviation and put it on a paying business.

Up to the present, aviation has been a good bit in the class of grand opera: pretty and spectacular, but requiring fat subsidies. Flying will not develop on any such aesthetic backing. It must be made to pay its own way. It cannot subsist on prizes and charity.

The two trans-oceanic hops, successful as they were, do not mean that the day of regular service between Europe and America is at hand. The pilots had to wait for the most favorable weather. That they were not forced down in mid-ocean is a blessing, but not all planes could repeat the stunt with such success.

At the present time, the future seems to lie in the multi-motored plane. With these planes, the failure of one or even two engines does not necessitate a landing in mid-ocean. One motor will permit the ship to carry on till relief in the form of a substantial ocean liner or sea-going tub can be reached. De Pinedo's experiences near the Azores prove this conclusively.

The need, therefore, as much as for airplanes themselves, is for mid-ocean emergency landing "fields." Ingenious dreamers have suggested any number of forms that these fields may take: huge floating doughnuts with sheltered quieted water in the holes, or cruising aircraft carriers such as the navy now has in the Langley. Between such stations, of course, a constant patrol would have to be maintained.

No summary of flying achievements would be complete without mentioning the airmail, which has been the foremost pioneer in this country. The acquisition of flying fields and the construction of beacons for night flying were necessary before this service could be carried on.

The problem of securing landing fields closer to business districts will have to be solved, or transportation to flying fields will have to be quickened considerably, as there is now too much time lost in going to and from the points of departure and landing.

It is no pun, therefore, to say that the future of flying lies on the ground. Flying accessories right down on the surface of the earth are woefully behind the achievements of ship in the air.

GUM SHOE DIPLOMATS.

American diplomats and statesmen mixing in foreign affairs have done much to spread the prestige of these United States, but the gospel of Americanism, whatever that is, has best been propagated by gum shoe salesmen.

Recent news that the first American soda fountain in Czechoslovakia had been opened in the city of Prague was therefore important, whether you believe it or not. Visit any of the highways and byways on this globe, and you will find in sod houses, igloos, and palm leaf huts, surprisingly large numbers of American phonographs, sewing machines, safety razors, jack knives, movies, fountain pens, cosmetics, typewriters, and patent medicines. Every one of these articles got there through the efforts of an American drummer. They, as much as the diplomats, have put the United States in the forefront of world esteem.

BUCK PRIVATES IN EDUCATION.

West Point Military Academy's announcement that two soldiers from the ranks of the regular army had walked off with scholastic honors this year but parallels the experiences of many colleges and universities: the students from the ranks are most often found to have passed through the barages of examinations with best records.

At Harvard, Yale and Princeton, men from the public schools always show up better in their studies than men from the private schools. In spite of tutoring and exceptional opportunity, the man with the pampered education cannot, or at least does not, hold his own with the man from the more unpromising source who has had to dig for his knowledge. Why the buck privates always seem to do best is something to make the educational theorists ponder long and deeply.

A Wisconsin girl killed a bear with a rolling pin. What a nice, marriageable companion!

A barefoot boy in San Francisco was barred from school. It is only in this modern age that education has come to apply to man's nether extremities.

News that Walter Hagen makes $90,000 a year playing golf opens up one more useful field for the employment of college graduates.

THE ANYMATES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

As Copsy swam up out of sight, he thought of Scouty Tynymite and wondered if the octopus would do him any harm. "I wish that I could find King Roar," said he. "I know he'd help, once more." You really can't blame Copsy. He had real cause for alarm.

He finally reached the water top, and made the dock with one grand hop. The other Tynies saw him and they shouted loud. "Hello! Where have you been? We've worried sick. You surely pulled a dandy trick." Then Copsy told them all about his trip 'way down below.

It sure created quite a fuss when they heard of the octopus. "Oh, gee," exclaimed wee Clowny, "Scouty's likely gone by now. I wish that we could lend him aid, but after all, I am afraid that we can never do it 'cause we simply don't know how."

And, in the meantime, Scouty stood and fought the very best he could. The Octopus seemed rather mad that Copsy got away. He thought 'twas Scouty's fault, no doubt. Perhaps that's why he turned about and took it out on Scouty, in a quite ferocious way.

He charged the little Tynymite. The battle was a thrilling sight. Wee Scouty grabbed a piece of wood that lay upon the sand. He swung with it the best he could, but 'twas so small it did no good, and shortly Mister Octopus just knocked it from his hand.

By now poor Scouty grew tired out. He planned to run, and turned about, but ere he'd gone a step or two his feet began to slip. The octopus was at his side, and very shortly Scouty cried, "Oh, help! Oh, help! The octopus has caught me in his grip."

(King Roar comes to Scouty's rescue in the next story.)

assured him fondly, but her heart was heavy with the same foreboding.

When she returned to the living room Cherry was playing on the baby grand piano, and singing, in her high, sweet voice: "I'll be loving you—always!"

Bob was sunk deep in the big wing chair, his feet outstretched on a hassock.

Faith closed her eyes, lay back quivering with desire for the touch of Bob's hands, for his lips, for one more blessed hour of that complete loneliness which had been theirs for too brief a time. A tear slipped from between her closed eyes.

SAINT and SINNER

That first evening after the family had invaded Faith's paradise was a nightmare for the girl-wife, Jim Lane, heartbreakingly humble and self-effacing, had gone to his unfamiliar room at nine o'clock, pretending an overwhelming sleepiness, but when Faith went to him at half past nine to see if he was entirely comfortable, she found him sitting forlornly on the edge of the bed, his head in his hands, his thin old shoulders bowed low.

"Would you rather stay at the old house, Dad? I thought you'd want to be with me."

"I do, daughter, but the first day or two's going to be hard. Feel all uprooted. Home broken up—But don't let me spoil your happiness. I don't feel right about us all piling in here on you, honey. 'Fraid it won't work, Faith." And he shook his head wearily.

"Of course it will work, Dad," she

ILLINOIS CROPS ARE FAR BELOW AVERAGES NOW

Report of June 1 Shows Everything Except
Wheat is Poor

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Outside of winter wheat, the condition of all other crops in Illinois is below the average, the June report of the federal and state departments of agriculture said today. Hay and pasture conditions stood out as the most favorable of all crops on June 1.

The report continued: "Crop conditions are generally spotted. Extreme wet and cool weather has been the rule through most of April and May. Illinois farmers have experienced one of the most discouraging spring planting seasons on record. Farm work is especially backward in the southern counties. Rains have been less excessive as a rule in the northern fifth of the state and progress of farm work is more advanced and the general condition of crops is somewhat better there than in the central and southern areas."

Growth of spring grains is backward due to much late planting and the unfavorable weather. Soil is wet, washing, many weedy fields and drowning out of crops in low parts of fields have all contributed to lowering crop conditions during May. Floods, especially along the Illinois river section and in the southern counties bordering on the Mississippi river, have caused much distress and loss to farmers in those areas."

Corn planting was two weeks late with about 25 per cent of Illinois corn planted on June 1. Much plowing remains to be done in some areas for corn. Since the advent of favorable June weather, farm work has been pushed to the limit wherever fields have been dry enough to work. Reports on June 10 show that rapid progress has been made and that many farmers have completed corn planting in the northern district. With some scattered exceptions there is a plentiful supply of farm labor in the state."

The condition of Illinois winter wheat on June 1 was rated at 79 per cent of normal. This is 5 points below the May 1 condition, but is one point above the average for the past ten years on June 1. Winter wheat reports show very irregular conditions in the state due to the large amount of late planting last fall, also thin spots in some fields and excessive rain damage this spring. Advancement of growth will average about ten days later than usual. Red rust is much worse than usual in the southern area where wheat is now in bloom."

The lower wheat condition reports are from a third of the state acreage located largely in the lower fifth of the state and in the west central counties. The better conditions are reported from another third of the state acreage extending from the northwest counties southeast through the lower east central area. State production outlook 38,106,000 bushels compared with 38,194,000 bushels produced last season and the past five year average production of 45,608,000 bushels. U. S. winter wheat production outlook 537,601,000 bushels compared with 534,929,000 bushels last year and the average of 555,515,000 bushels. Illinois spring wheat is reported 82 per cent of normal compared with 81 per cent a year ago and the average of 84 per cent. U. S. spring wheat condition 56.8 per cent compared with 75.5 per cent last year and the average of 58.9 per cent. Acreage and production reports covering spring wheat, oats and barley will not be issued until July.

"Illinois oats prospect is poor with some exceptions, chiefly in the northwest area. Very poor in the south, or the light belt. Acreage reduced considerably below early intentions due to extremely unfavorable spring planting conditions. It is doubtful if over 25 per cent of the state acreage was sown early or fairly early and got off to a favorable start. Many late fields show short backward growth and others are thin and weedy with low spots drowned out. State oats conditions 74 per cent compared with 75 per cent last year, 73 per cent in 1925 and the past ten year average of 56 per cent. The condition of oats during the last three years for June 1 has been the lowest since 1913 when a condition of 74 per cent was reported. U. S. oats condition 79.9 per cent compared with 78.8 per cent last year and the average of 68.1 per cent."

"Illinois barley condition 83 per cent compared with the average of 91 per cent. U. S. barley condition 81.5 per cent against the average of 86.9 per cent. State condition 87.6 per cent against the average of 84.9 per cent."

"The state tame hay prospect is way above average. Red clover is showing up especially well as a rule this season. State hay condition 88 per cent against the average of 74 per cent. U. S. tame hay condition 88 per cent compared with the average of 85.3 per cent. Illinois pastures are the best in years with the June 1 condition reported at 93 per cent of normal."

"Illinois tree fruit situation is very spotted due chiefly to the April 21st frost and prolonged wet weather preventing proper pollination. Calhoun county, the heavy apple producing county in the state, has a less favorable apple crop prospect than usual. Apples are reported to be dropping badly and it will be difficult to give an accurate estimate of the apple crop outlook before July 1. State apple condition, including farm orchards, 51 per cent of normal compared with 72 per cent last year and the average of 66 per cent. U. S. apple condition 57.2 per cent compared with 78.3 per cent last year and the average of 69.7 per cent."

"The condition of all peaches, including farm orchards, is reported at 38 per cent of normal compared with the average of 42 per cent. Peaches are practically a failure north of the line drawn from northern St. Clair to Jasper county. The commercial peach district is largely located south of this line with a prospect somewhat better than a half crop. U. S. peach condition 51.8 per cent against 74.3 per cent last year and the average of 63.9 per cent."

"Illinois condition of pears, including farm orchards, is reported at 38 per cent compared with 78 per cent of last year and the average of 58 per cent. The present outlook for the commercial pear crop in Illinois is not over 30 per cent of the crop. U. S. pear condition 56.9 per cent against 79.8 per cent last year and the average of 67.6 per cent."

FREE EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES OF ILL. WERE BUSY IN MAY

Had More Trouble Than in Any Corresponding
Time in 6 Years

Chicago, Ill.—Free employment offices operated by the Illinois department of labor had more trouble finding jobs for applicants in May than in any corresponding period in the last six years.

The department reported today there was a further decline of 6 per cent in the volume of factory payrolls below that of any May since 1921.

The condition was due to the gradual recession which has characterized the course of industrial employment during 1927, said the report, which continued:

"The monthly decline does not differ radically from previous years. Slight differences are noted, however. In place of the more usual spring reduction, iron foundry owners have added 0.4 per cent more names to their payrolls. A 0.7 per cent increase in the men's clothing industry is also a reversal of the usual spring movement. In contrast to the upward course of May employment which has been reported by meat packers in previous years, a drop of 0.7 per cent is indicated. A strike in the lumber mills resulted in a 17 per cent decline in that industry."

"Fewer workers are also reported by the non-manufacturing groups. Several hundred railroad workers have lost their jobs as a result of the falling off of business due to the coal strike. In the trade groups, mail order houses and department stores reported layoffs. Builders reversed their usual policy of adding men to their payroll, by laying off 2.8 per cent of their employees."

"Employment in the building products industries continues to increase except in the brick yards which have been hindered by heavy rains. Glass factories have increased the number of workers on their payrolls by 1.3 per cent."

"The metals industries have experienced a mixed trend. There has been a decline of 0.8 per cent in the entire group, largely the result of reductions in the electrical equipment, machinery and farm implement lines which are undergoing their usual spring recessions. It is a matter of significance that with the exception of the automobile industry, the only additions made have been scored by establishments manufacturing materials to be used by factories."

"Although every industry in the wood products group reports a decrease, the mill strike made the reduction considerably larger. In the furniture industries a reduction in the number of workers of 0.4 per cent is reported, and statements from box factory owners, indicate that they have 0.2 per cent fewer names on their payrolls, than in April."

"Fur and leather manufacturers have reversed their usual spring trend with an increase of 0.7 per cent. Every industry reports more employees than in April."

"The chemical industries report that they are undergoing their usual spring recession. Oil refineries have dismissed the largest number of workers."

"Job printers are the only representatives of the printing industry to report more workers than a month ago. A drop of 3.1 per cent is reported by manufacturers of primary paper materials."

"In the textile group 1.5 per cent more workers have been added. Increases are general."

"In every major division of the men's clothing industry more workers have been added to the payroll, but, without an exception in all branches of the women's clothing group, there have been decreases in employment. In the former, the trend is a reversal from that of May in the last three years; and in the latter, the reduction is less than is usual for this season."

"More workers are employed by establishments making food products than in April. The greatest gains are reported in the canning, grocery, and dairy products group. The 0.7 per cent employment drop in meat packing establishments is quite unusual for May. Ordinarily workers are added to their payrolls during May."

"The 0.1 per cent increase in the public utility group is due to additions made by the telephone and street railway companies. Railway car repair shops report recessions as a result of the coal strike which has materially reduced the demand for transportation facilities."

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE by PAUL ADAMS

ticles written by a correspondent for The Telegraph who is revisiting France.

CHAPTER LXII

The warm stillness of a soft day—the musical call of a cuckoo—the merry song of a merle—

Belleau Wood—the Bois de la Brigade des Marines. Nine years ago today, hot fighting was in progress there. Not until June 27 was the last German driven from the forest.
Then, for more than 15 days, the Germans dropped a half million shells of all calibers in their effort to regain their lost stronghold.

No human brain, except those that emerged from the struggle, can ever visualize the awfulness of those days.
Today—Belleau Wood is almost as it was when war ended. Many of the evidences have been removed. But there are foxholes where men fought and died. There are trenches. There are battered tin hats, rusted rifles, hand grenades, half explosive shells, French 75s and German 77s and all the other implements of combat.

Karok Indian, early today was leading eleven Indians who left San Francisco Tuesday morning on a 480 mile marathon to Grants Pass, Oregon.

RED-HOT RED IS BLACK.
Pittsburgh—An engineer of the Westinghouse company has invented a red paint which turns black at a temperature of 150 degrees Fahrenheit. The paint is for use near bearings and other parts of machinery which sometimes run hot to the detachment of equipment. As the metal cools down the black paint becomes red again.

In a pound of raw silk it is estimated that there are 750 miles of fiber. The number of silk worms which supply the world is almost uncalculable. One American company uses three million cocoons a day.

Many signs along the sanded paths tell the story of that sanguine engagement. There's a thatched hut where visitors may sign their names;
there's another hut at a crossroads among the trees where visitors may sit and rest. At the edge two hay-nests have been set in wooden supports, horizontally, so visitors may scrape the mud from their shoes before entering.

Belleau Wood—
It seems a sacrilege to speak above a whisper. That's the impression every American has, and it will strike every member of the American Legion who makes a pilgrimage in September to the cemetery at the base of the wooded hill.

Belleau Wood—where the monuments are the shattered trees, many of which, as this one protected by a wire fence, still hold shells that are unexploded.

Belleau Wood—nine years after—a spider fastens another thread of his web to a leaf—and the stillness of a soft day—a solemn stillness and a solemn softness—is broken only by the song of a merle and the far-off call of a cuckoo.

RADIO RODE OVER NEW AIRWAYS AND FOUND GOING GOOD

New Allocation Proved Satisfactory Most of Fans Report

Chicago, June 15—(AP)—Radio rode over new federal charted airways last night and in almost every instance found the new roads better than the old.

There was some confusion, but it was mostly among set owners twisting their dials exploring as they sought favorite stations on new wave bands ordered by the Federal Radio Commission.

Station managements appeared more concerned over the re-allocation than listeners. Several announcers requested the opinion of their audiences on the change, the fans' replies being quite generally favorable.

In the Chicago district, the effect of the re-allocations was watched closely because one hope of the radio commission was that the change would clear up congestion which has been the cause of much complaint from set owners.

Many found that the new wave length often removed one interfering station only to supplant it with another.

Federal radio inspectors began a careful check to insure strict compliance with the commission's order and found no cases where the new regulations were being disregarded.

CIVIC ACHIEVEMENTS

BY DON E. MOWRY

Cities are protecting themselves against fire losses, but the farmer living ten miles from a city is almost helpless in the face of a conflagration.

They thought about this problem in Albion, Mich., and through the rural relations committee of the Chamber of Commerce worked out this plan:

The farmers in the vicinity of Albion subscribed $25 per farm for protection. They bought a complete truck carrying both chemical and water pump. The truck cost $8000. The farmers are now organized and have the Albion Rural Fire Truck Association. Farms within a radius of 10 miles of Albion have protection. The outfit is operated from the city by members of the local fire department.

Call up on the telephone and the truck starts right out to the fire.

"We do not feel as helpless when we think of possible fires any longer.
We know we can call up and will get the needed assistance," one farmer said the other day.

Here's a chance for many other cities to help their rural neighbors.
This project has been one of the greatest good will builders for this Michigan city. The rural neighbors look to the city for leadership all over the country. Albion recognized this positive fact and acted. Three times the value of the equipment has already been saved.

PILE SUFFERERS

How Far Have You Gotten with

Don't be surprised that supposito-

Piles can be removed by an opera-harmless little tablet taken internally can banish the cause of Piles and bring real, lasting and honest-to-good-

Masonic Children's Party a Success

The Dorothy Chapter of the Eastern Star and Friendship Lodge, A. F. & A. M., entertained the children of their members at a Children's Party held in Masonic Hall last evening. Over two hundred children attended and enjoyed the evening immensely. Until nine o'clock the children under twelve years of age were entertained by a program consisting of five clowns including, Simple Simon, Pie Man, and a Clown Policeman. A program of fancy dances was given consisting of:

Jazz Dance—Elnid Segner.
Toe Dance—Mildred Segner.
Followed by some pupils of Miss Frances Campbell including: Gypsy Dances—Dorothy Hoyle, Waltz—Billie Scott, Waltz—Jane Earle, Jazz Dance—Wanda Rossiter, Ballet Dance—Emily Swan.
The fancy dancing was followed by a grand march during which each child was presented with souvenirs. Refreshments were served and pretty favors were given to the children, including large balloons, ticklers, blow-ups, and some very pretty pin-wheels, hats, etc.

From nine o'clock to twelve the children over twelve years of age were entertained by dancing and refreshments and very pretty souvenirs were given to them.

This was the most successful party ever given for the children and they went away tired, but happy, and the ladies who arranged it deserve a great deal of praise and thanks.

American Legion Auxiliary Meeting

The American Legion Auxiliary Dixon Post No. 12, held their regular meeting Wednesday at the home of the president, Mrs. Corabel George.

A picnic dinner was served at 1 o'clock to which fifty members and guests did ample justice, the attractive tables groaning under savory burdens of food. A short business session followed. The president had been asked to present two flags, one at the Kingdom church and one to the eighth grade of the south side school. The unit voted to supply these flags. Four large boxes of clothing were sent last week to the flood sufferers at Cairo, Ill. A large delegation of Auxiliary members plan to attend the district convention at Polo Sunday. Mrs. Bessie Stuart Smith, Dept. Pres. will be present and address the assemblage. Several members have already secured tickets for the banquet—this to be a joint affair of Legion and Auxiliary. At the close of the business session a short program was given. Mrs. Lillian Stevens read a splendid poem paying tribute to Colonel Charles Lindbergh, "America's Ambassador of Good Will." Miss Jane Earl in a quaint colonial costume gave a beautiful dance. Mrs. Mary Schmucker read a musical romance, piano numbers being given, naming places and people.

Mrs. Lou Withers was prevailed upon to give one of her original dances. These numbers were all enjoyed. Some work of a disabled world war veteran was disposed of realizing a nice sum of money to be given to him. One new member was added to the membership roll. The next regular meeting of the unit will be July 6 in Legion hall.

Miss Schroeder Was Happily Surprised

Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schroeder in Arroyo a delightful surprise was held in honor of their daughter, Miss Florence Schroeder, whose engagement to Devon Pence has been announced. Both are popular and well known young people and friends extend congratulations in advance.

The surprise was cleverly planned and proved a great success. Miss Schroeder had planned to entertain her bridge club of a few tables Thursday evening and had invited her friend, Miss Ruth Leech of Dixon, to assist her in entertaining. Miss Leech acquiesced and on thinking it over decided it was a rare opportunity in which to surprise her friend, and therefore proceeded to invite more guests for the evening, so when all arrived Miss Schroeder was surely surprised. The home was beautifully decorated with early summer blossoms, syringa, peonies and roses, in lovely profusion.

The evening was devoted to bridge and Miss Addie Jones was awarded the favor for high score; Miss Schroeder won the second favor and

RUBY-RING HOSIERY

Irish Hearts

By MOLLIE MALONE

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"IRISH HEARTS," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Sheila Kildare and her father emigrate to America from Kilmoul, Ireland. They follow Emmett Murtough, to whom Sheila is betrothed. Neither Kildare or Murtough will hold steady jobs and Sheila goes to work as a waitress. She makes friends with the family of Rory O'Shea, a professional boxer, whose kindness interests her. Murtough joins a bootlegging gang and is involved with a cabaret girl. The gang plans to unload $150,000 worth of contraband.

CHAPTER IX—Continued
At Clarice's invitation Murtough joined a party of two men and two women in evening dress and as the drinks began to be served more and more rapidly, Murtough's tongue was loosened. One of the women was particularly anxious to know "the inside" of "bootlegging" and professed the utmost admiration for the men who dared law and death to engage in it.
"It's really as romantic as in the days of the real pirates," she said. "Just think what men must go through to unload ships at sea and all that."
"Oh, there's lots of excitement if that's what ye mean," Murtough said, "but there's not so much danger on the water as there is when the stuff has to be driven over land. At sea there's a chance of being caught by a revenue cutter, an' they'd blow ye to pieces if ye didn't come to, but on land ye run up against not only the government men, but hijackers an' state police too. Everybody's against ye on land. Why, only tonight—" "Emmett!" Clarice squeezed his hand in warning but the Murtough was flattered by the attention of the woman who was listening so landing and Clarice learned all the details which had been revealed at Clocker's landing action. This was more news than the mysterious "Gus" could possibly want, she thought. When would "Gus" call at the Castle for the information and how soon would he pay her the $5,000 he had promised?

CHAPTER X
Idle Boats Are Boomerangs
Emmett Murtough was a sick man when he awakened that evening. Not only was he ill physically, but he recalled with no little misgivings that he had talked a great deal the night before, and he could not remember how much of importance he had divulged. He feared that he may have revealed details of Clocker's plans which, if learned, would be punished only as the head of the bootleg ring knew how to punish. Dismissal and a sound thrashing by a couple of thugs was the usual portion with a warning to stay out of the vicinity of Clocker's district. Emmett decided to quiet his conscience by calling for Sheila at the restaurant.

Sheila was delighted to see him. The change in Emmett had pleased her mightily and she was anxious in turn to do all she could to help him in his ambitions, ambitions which he had confided while he was lying at her home injured. Sheila gaily invited him to take her for a walk through Central Park after her work was finished at Nick's.
She chattered happily, told him in all detail about hearing the announcement of the fight at the Garden round by round, speculated upon the marvels of the radio, and Murtough forgot his fears and recounted his night drives along lonely roads. With an Irishman's true blarney he painted the sky with bright stars and described the eerie night scenery as he sped by in his "express" truck.
The West End Club dance was to be held on the next Saturday night and Murtough promised her a glorious time and told her of the elaborate plans he had heard were being made for the affair. Everybody in the district would attend and even the Mayor and the Governor might drop in for a little while. It was to be broadcast also as one of the important political functions of the fall.
"Ah, Emmett, an' there's a change for the good come over ye here recent," said Sheila softly as they turned their steps back toward the entrance of the Park at the Circle. "Ye are softer an' gentler than ye used to be when I first come over here."
"Tis due to you entirely," responded Murtough, carried away by the spell of her presence. "Tis due to you and nothing else."
"I'm glad, for sometimes I felt that maybe I was a bit strong-headed to be quarrelling with you an' father all the time about yer business. After all, Emmett, ye are a man an' I guess perhaps ye know yer own business best at times."
"I'm doing well now, Sheila, but I want to do better yet."
"An' do ye think sometimes of the question ye asked me back there in Kilmoul just before ye came away?"
"Indeed an' indeed I do. 'Tis only that I want ye should have what ye should be having before we go to the priest," he said.
"I believe ye, Emmett, an' as I told ye, if when ye have made good as ye wish, ye put the question to me, I'll give ye my answer."
"But why can't ye promise now, Sheila?" he pleaded.
"Would ye want me to; wouldn't ye rather be free an' with no strings tied to ye until ye have done what ye wished?"
"Give me yer promise now, Sheila. It will help me to get on for I'll be thinking all the time of ye an' that ye are waiting an' hoping for me to make good."
"Then I do, Emmett," she said simply, and turned to his arms there in the shadows of the trees. They were silent until they reached Sheila's home. Sheila content in having done what she believed was not only her duty to the boy who had come from Kilmoul, but what her love dictated.
Emmett was not so sure as his mind reverted to his other associates. Sheila would undoubtedly learn the truth about his "business" some day; if they were married by that time there was little that she could do about it, but if they were not, Emmett knew full well the scorn with which she would treat a law-breaker. Could he take the chance? He had, as a matter of fact, so that was all there was to it. But there was Clarice, and he surmised that she might be a spiteful creature if she was aroused and might make him trouble if there was cause. These complications, however, must be faced as they came, he decided.
Clarice hugged the information Murtough had poured out to her breast like a "fence" miserly guarding precious stones until he could find a buyer.

Sheila gaily invited him to take her for a walk.

intently and the mood for boasting was on him. He told the story of the hold-up by the "agents" and the graft that was paid to them. He put himself in the shoes of Devila and he let it be known with many reiterations, just how clever he had been in realizing that the tactful method of paying out a little money was better than to stand a chance of a real arrest and the confiscation of the automobiles and cargo if it proved that the men were honest enforcement men.

"And who do you work for," queried one of the men to whom the recital seemed endless and boring.

"Mannie—," Clarice stopped him at the word.

"Emmett, they don't care who you work for, they're just interested in the fun you have."

"That's true, but I wondered if it was for one of the big gangs about which we read in the papers. That was all," explained the guest. It was plain that this was the truth for the woman who had shown such a deep interest in that they were from the West and just "slumming" through the night clubs. The host of the table called for a check and with polite farewells to Murtough and Clarice they left. Shortly afterward the manager told the girl that she could go home.

"Where shall we go," Murtough asked when they were on the sidewalk. "I'd like a couple of more."
"Let's go down to Corrigan's and I'll eat a sandwich. I'm hungry. They don't let us girls eat there, no matter if we're invited."

Murtough was at the danger line. He had enjoyed an audience and now he wanted to talk, he wanted to be thought the big man, the man who was in big business and who was to make thousands. Clarice played up to him as she always did and by the time Murtough had escorted her to her home, Clarice had learned definitely, not only that Emmett worked for Mannie Clocker, but the names of the men who were associated with him, and last but not least the news of the arrival of the ship with its $150,000 cargo. Murtough had boasted gloriously of the part he would play after the

Jungle Breath

© 1927 by NEA Service Ben Lucien Burman

THIS HAS HAPPENED. Posing at times as a barber, at others as ATTORNEY DAVIS, a curious man called Vilak has come to the quiet little town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, to help his cousin, ELISE HARRIS, solve a strange mystery.

Elise, a beautiful American girl, has inherited a coffee plantation and other property adjoining Porto Verde. Several mysterious deaths occur, including that of one of her foremen. She herself has been threatened and warned to leave. Vilak, learning that ELISE'S NANNY, a famous American chemist and once a teacher of his, is in South America, sends for him.

Vilak believes that GAYLORD PRENTISS, a mysterious and far-reaching man, is somehow involved in the deaths. He tries to visit Prentiss but is ordered to stay away. Elise's two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped and Prentiss is suspected. Vilak tracks the kidnappers, who are on horseback, and finally he and his companions come upon the child, unharmed and being cared for by a man of railroad laborers in the charge of one CARLOS D'ALRENTA.

Vilak tells Elise she and the child must leave on the next boat. He and Nanny return that evening to reward D'Alrenta and his men with some wine. Before they come away, Vilak, through a seemingly accidental fall, manages to get hold of a ring which he says he snatched from the finger of D'Alrenta's half-bred foreman.

Returning, they hear a man's cries and dash into a clearing in the woods to rescue a Indian from torture at the hands of two ruffians. Vilak is stabbed in the wrist in the encounter.

NOW BEGINS THE STORY. CHAPTER XVIII. VILAK felt the Indian's pulse. "No. Don't worry. He'll be all right in a minute." He brought some water from a nearby pool and dashed it on his forehead. "Amazing what these jungle people can stand."

In a moment the aborigine's eyes opened again. He looked about him wonderingly, then pulled himself to a sitting posture and indicated that he wished to rise. Vilak shook his head. But the Indian, notwithstanding the tremendous pain the effort must have cost him, rose to his feet an instant, then dropped to his knees before V'ak and began a violent series of prostrations, alternately beating his cheek with the flat of his hands, then rubbing his forehead against the tip of Vilak's boot.

In a few moments Vilak, though impeded by his wound, had fashioned a rude crutch from a small tree limb, and demonstrating to the Indian how it should be used, put it under his arm.

"We'll take him back to his camp," Vilak said as they moved off in the direction of the road. "Don't say anything about this to Elise. I've tried to frighten her enough when I thought it would accomplish anything, but now that she's agreed to go, there's no use of increasing her worries. Frankly, once I get her out of here I don't intend to let her back. Where things are going to end, God only knows. . . . Will you please not look constantly at my hand and shake your little pellet of a head so guiltily? It isn't your fault, I tell you, that my hand was hurt."

The old man took off his thick glasses and wiped them jerkily. "They might have killed you . . . er . . . killed you . . . But you can count on me . . . I never do it again . . . er . . . never . . . er . . . why did they torture him so?"

"Why do criminals do anything?" Half carrying the wounded Indian and actually lifting him when they reached bad places in the path, they came to the road again. They had not walked far when they perceived three men coming toward them.

"All right, I'll believe you," she murmured, bright once more. "But it's a nasty wound, just the same. Sure there aren't any pieces inside it?"

"Positive." "At least let me put a proper looking bandage on it. That one you have is terribly amateurish. I have to have something to keep me in practice or I'll completely forget that I trained for war work."

"Good, if it makes you feel superior." She departed and returned with some boracic acid and a bandage. These she deftly applied to his hand. "I must keep you in good repair, my esteemed and criminal cousin," she said banteringly. "You're quite valuable to me, even necessary at the moment."

"Valuable or not," he retorted, "the thing in which I'm interested is whether you're getting ready to leave Thursday with Tinky."

"I'll have everything ready by noon tomorrow. After that there'll be nothing to do but wait two days for the boat." She motioned toward the tiny bed which could be glimpsed in a dark room inside. "I've moved Tinky where I can watch him all the time. At night I keep him in my room, and I'm going to take Hannah out of the kitchen and let her take care of him in the day time for the few moments that I can't be with him. Hannah was my nurse when I was a child and I know she'd let herself get killed before she'd let anything happen to him."

They talked a few moments longer, then Elise retired for the night. The old man, weary and exhausted, followed her example. Vilak, left alone, read for half an hour, strode outside the house and listened intently to the myriad sounds coming from the jungle.

He was making his customary round of the house and was trying all the doors and windows to see if they were locked—though the precaution seemed futile for the slight material of which they were constructed made them little of a barrier—when he heard a footstep. He looked in the direction of the sound and in a moment saw Schwartz, the fat German foreman, approaching. His eyes glanced curiously at Vilak over their puffy tearbags. "Good evening, Mr. Schwartz," Vilak said politely.

"Good evening, Herr Davis." The foreman's words came in short asthmatic jerks. "Everything all right on the fazenda?"

"All right, I think. You try der doors und windows, Herr Davis?" "Yes, Mr. Schwartz."

The veins in the German's face glowed as Vilak struck a match to light his cigaret. "Dot is vot I come to do also. I am afraid somebody, somedings maybe comes to bodder her in der night. Somedimes when she closes der house she is not careful, Fraulein Marberry. And ven we have no guns here der is not nice. Nicht wahr, Herr Davis?" He grinned.

"Oh, you're right. Absolutely." "But now dot you are here I vill not worry longer. No. I vill go home to bed. Good night, Herr Davis."

"Good night, Mr. Schwartz." The German walked off in the direction from which he had come. Vilak watched his fat body roll past a tree and disappear in the darkness, then took a few more puffs of his cigaret and returned to the house. Undressing, he put his pistol on a table where it would be within instantaneous reach, then crawled into bed. The night passed without incident.

Early in the morning, before the others had awakened, he hurried down the deserted road to his house, put on the clothes he wore as a barber, being careful to conceal the wound on his hand by wearing a coat longer than usual, and walked to the town.

After an hour spent in collecting a few articles in the barber shop, he sought out the lazy, gaudily dressed proprietor of the hotel, and striking his heart forcibly with his hand, explained to that listless individual that he had been seized with a bad fever during the night and was leaving that morning for the mountains of Avila where the elevation was higher and the climate more conducive to recovery. He might be back in a week, he declared, he might be back in a month; perhaps he might never come back. Perhaps he might even die in the mountains.

The proprietor crowsily expressed a polite wish that such might not be the case and with pleasure accepted the month's rent for the barber shop which Vilak put in his hand. Having thus interred barber Riggs for as long a time as he wished, Vilak returned to the tiny establishment of which he had been the head and sole employee for several months, and was making final preparations for his departure, when he noticed knots of natives gathering in the street, talking loudly and gesticulating in the excited fashion that he knew meant something had happened in the town.

Hurrying out, he strode up to one of the villagers, a barefoot old man with a long beard and a huge pancake-shaped hat of straw which rested insecurely on

Watch Your Frail Puny Child Grow Strong Take on Weight

Three months ago he was thin and frail—he had no appetite and didn't want to play with other children. Look at him now with his robust frame, his healthy color and sparkling eyes—and just watch him eat.

Cod Liver Oil would have helped him but he couldn't take the nasty stuff—it upset his delicate stomach.

So his wise mother gave him Mc-Coy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tab-lets and now the whole family is happy.

Give your child McCoy's Mother if he is weak and thin—it is rich in just the kind of vitamins he needs to build him up and if by any chance they don't help him, get your money back. 60 tablets 60 cents at all drug-gists everywhere. But demand Mc-Coy's—the original—the genuine—guaranteed—the druggist who tries to substitute is unworthy of your con-fidence—Adv.
